Dastardly Act Charged to Strikers in California.

TRAIN WRECKED AND FOUR KILLED

Two Deputy Marshals Killed in a Fight with Rioters at Whiting. Ind.—At Chicago the Outlook Is More Peaceful and the Strike Broken.

CHICAGO. July 12.—The great railway strike is practically at an end in Chicago. Trains on all roads are moving, passenger trains are almost without exception on time and freight traffic is rapidly becoming regular. "The backbone of the strike is not only broken," said Manager Egan, of the General Managers' association, "but the backbone has entirely disappeared. The blockade is raised, and it will require but a short time to get the railroad business of the city back into its regular routine."

The ultimate effect of the appeal issued Tuesday night by Grand Master Workman Sovereign, of the Knights of Labor, calling on all Knights throughout the country and those in sympathy with them to quit work, and the order issued at about the same time by the representatives of allied labor in Chicago to do likewise, cannot yet be certainly foreseen All that is definitely known is that the K. of L. at all points heard from, including nearly all of the large centers of population in the United States, remained at work yesterday with practical unanimity, and that in this city the number of members of the allied trades who remained at work so far outnumbered those who quit as to make no appreciable change in the industrial appearance of the city.

The leaders, however, say that there is nothing in the situation to cause them discouragement. Mr. Sovereign, for instance, points out that his appeal was not an order to strike; that, in fact, he has no power to order a walkout; but that the persons acquainted with the working of the organization would know that, in effect, it would be the same as an order. In short, he was perfectly confident that by Saturday next, after the various local and district assemblies had time to meet and take formal action on the appeal and to rally their friends outside of the order, the result would show a million men idle

The local strike leaders also claimed that a little time was the only necessary condition to a walkout of the hundred thousand men whom they represent, and that by Saturday, after the various suborganizations had had time to consult together, the proposed tie up of business would be fully as effective as they had predicted.

Surface indications so far, however, do not bear out the claims of either Mr. Sovereign or Chicago men It is not recorded yet that any district assembly of the Knights of Labor has voted on the strike. On the other hand, the Brooklyn district—which is composed of railroad men and therefore naturally supposably in sympathy with their fellows in the west—at a meeting yesterday confined their expression of sympathy to a tender of financial aid, but declined to strike. Locally several of the organizations, members of the federated trades, have given it to be understood that they do not intend to go out.

The general public, as well as organized labor, is looking forward with marked interest to the meeting of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor, perhaps the most powerful organization of the kind in this country, which met in this city today, and its action is expected to have a marked effect on the outcome of the present industrial struggle. It is known that the position of Samuel Gompers, its president, has been one of opposition to a sympathetic strike of Federation men at this time

It is reported that when the federal grand jury concludes its investigation of the A. R. U. it will begin an inquiry into the policy and methods of the General Managers' association. Among the leaders of the workingmen the charge has been made openly and repeatedly that the obstruction of United States mails and the interruption of interstate commerce was due quite as much to the general managers as to the railway union. It has been stated that the general managers agreed among themselves that no trains should be run on any of the roads until all have gained their points in disputes with the men The men insist that there is as clear a case of conspiracy on the part of the general managers as the acts of Debs and his associates rendered them indictable for conspiracy. Judge Grosscup and District Attorney Milchrist have said that justice will be meted out impartially to all violators of the federal statutes

The federal officials from Judge Grosscup down are not a little annoyed over the blunder made by the over zealous deputy marshals and postoffice inspectors who illegally seized President Debs' papers. The seizure was wholly illegal, unjustifiable and unwarranted It was an outrage against the rights of the citizen, committed by ignorant petty officials in their zeal to serve the corporations which are prosecuting Debs and his associates. It was a flagrant violation of law, decency and everything else that makes up the liberty of the individual. So gross was this crime that Judge Grosscup, in open court yesterday, virtually apologized to Debs and ordered that his papers be returned to him.

Private William J. Downing, of company K, Second regiment, Illinois National Guard, while walking down Halsted street was jeered and hooted by a crowd of men, women and children Irritated at their persistence Downing drew his bayonet and turned on the crowd. Patrick O'Connor, a laborer clinched with Downing, and while the two were struggling in the gutter Downing drew his pistol and shot O'Connor through the head. He died on the way to the hospital, and the private was rescued from the now infuriated crowd by a detachment of police.

Mayor Pingree, of Detroit, Mayor Hopkins, of Chicago, Hon. Erskin M. Phelps, of this city, and Vice President Wickes, of the Pullman company, were in conference late yesterday afternoon discussing arbitration. Mr. Wickes again refused to arbitrate.

General Master Workman Sovereign, of the Knights of Labor, said in an interview: "Proceedings will be commenced in Washington, under direction of the members of the executive committee of the Knights of Labor, who are in that city, to impeach Attorney General Olney."

THE CALIFORNIA GUERILLAS.

They Cause the Wreck of a Train and the Death of Four Men.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—For over twenty-four hours United States regulars have been on the field in northern California, but the railroad blockade has not been broken. In fact, the situation today is deemed more serious than it has been at any time heretofore.

Human life has been sacrificed at Sacramento in a horror which the strikers are accused of having perpetrated. It is clear that the strikers realize the folly of openly resisting the United States army as they have resisted all municipal and state authorities, and that the barbarous and more deadly tactics of guerilla warfare are to be resorted to.

Twice during yesterday the troops were ambushed. The first attack from under cover was early in the morning. At 6 o'clock Colonel Graham landed in Sacramento with a force of over 600 regulars. No effort was made to resist their progress. The troops marched direct to the Southern Pacific depot and took possession of the buildings and railroad yards. A few hundred people gathered at the depot dispersed when ordered to do so. At the wharves a detachment of state militia had been left to guard the water front. The regular troops were no sooner out of sight than this little band of militiamen was fired upon with rifles by a force of some twenty-five men who were concealed in the bushes on the opposite side of the river. The militiamen returned the fire, and about 200 shots were exchanged across the river before the attacking party fled. A Japanese boy who stood on the river bank was killed by a bullet from the militia. Some of the attacking party were apprehended.

Under cover of the United States troops the railroad officials went into the yards and resumed work unmolested The tracks were cleared and trains were made up. At noon a train was dispatched for Oakland under a strong militia guard Among the crowds of strikers in the streets there were men who openly boasted that the train would never reach Oakland, but no one thought they spoke knowingly.

An hour later, when the news came back to Sacramento of a horrible railroad wreck, these same men were as loudly denying that the men were strikers who had sawed away the supports of the railroad bridge. The disaster at the bridge caused the railroad company to cease its efforts to move trains out of Sacramento Until the wreckers now at work shall have repaired the damage to the trestle no trains can be run over that line.

The latest information in regard to the wreck is that the strikers sawed the supports of the trestle, but left the rails intact. As soon as the train went on the bridge it was ditched, and the strikers immediately opened fire from ambush with Winchesters. The dead are Engineer Samuel B Clark and three private soldiers named Byrne, Lubberding and Clark. The wounded are: Private Daumler, injured about the head; Private Wilson, left leg seriously lacerated; Private Dugan, left arm cut off; Private Ellis, internally injured. General Graham has dispatched a troop of cavalry to the scene.

The city is practically under martial law. Sheriff O'Neil last night arrested S. D. Worden on suspicion of being implicated in the derailment of the train He has been quite prominent in labor circles, and was recently sent as a delegate to the Chicago convention. The sheriff has also arrested G G. Green, William Burt and H. E. Bodner, alleged strikers, for complicity in the wrecking of the train.

At Oakland the outlook was also warlike. The railroad officials were making preparations early in the day to start trains simultaneously with those sent out from Sacramento. After the full force of deputies had arrived a band of strikers charged into the yards. After all the engines that had been run out were killed the strikers withdrew. Then came news of the disaster near Sacramento. When Division Superintendent Wilder heard that the train had been wrecked he stopped further preparations.

"We want to know where we stand," he said, before we go ahead. If bushwhacking is now to prevail, we do not propose to send our men out and jeopardize their lives."

Two Deputy Marshals Killed.

HAMMOND, Ind , July 12.—A report from Whiting states that two United States deputy marshals were killed last evening and a number wounded in a fight with rioters. Adjutant General Robbins immediately detailed three companies of state militia, under command of Colonel A. F. Lee, to the scene and one company to Roby. Train Service Suspended

MASSILLON, O., July 12 —General Manager Blair, of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railway, executed a flank movement on the sympathetic strikers by issuing an order to heads of departments by which the services of all employes not absolutely necessary to the running of trains in the tied up condition of the road are to be dispensed with This sweeping order throws into idleness some 3,000 employes, of whom not more than 600 belong to the A R U. CLEVELAND SUSTAINED

INCREASING THE PUBLIC DOMAIN.

Railroads Which Have Possession of Unearned Acres Will be Obliged to Forfeit Them Under the Bill Which Passed the National House.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The senate is making up for lost time and is now disposing of the appropriation bills at a rapid rate. The record for yesterday is three—the diplomatic and consular, the invalid pension and the military academy appropriation bills. The strike question again agitated the placid serenity of the senate. After an hour's debate in which the firmness, courage and patriotism of the president were commended by all, Mr. Daniels' resolution briefly indorsing the president's action and pledging him the sympathy and support of the nation was adopted as a substitute for Senator Peffer's resolution

By virtue of the adoption of a special order the house was enabled to reach a vote on the McRae land grant forfeiture bill yesterday afternoon, and it was passed. The bill amends the act of Sept. 29, 1890, which in substance declared the forfeiture to the United States of lands heretofore granted to states and corporations to aid in the construction of railroads to the ~~extent only of lands opposite to and~~ coterminous with the portions of such railroads as were not completed and operated at that date. The bill passed yesterday extends the forfeiture to the portions of the several railroads to aid in the construction of which the grants were made, which were uncompleted when the time expired within which the roads were respectively required to be completed by the several laws making the grants. It involves portions of the grants of twenty-five roads, the principal one of which is the Northern Pacific, and will restore to the public domain about 54,000,000 acres.

A proviso was added to the bill so as to prevent it from being construed to forfeit the right of way or station grounds of any company and also confirms to purchasers in good faith from such railroads the title to lands, not in excess of 320 acres to each holder. An effort was made by Mr. Hartmann, of Montana, to remove the 320 acres limitation on purchase titles, but this was defeated.

The demonstration referred to occurred before the house of a descendant of Kilinsky The people cheered and shouted until they were surrounded by police, and 240 persons, including thirty-two women, were arrested.

The McKeesport Strikers.

McKEESPORT, Pa , July 12.—A total of 200 strikers are now at work in the tube works here. The gas men and the firemen still refuse to go to work, and until their places can be filled the plant cannot resume The general committee of the strikers claim that notwithstanding the fact that some of the men are in the mill no work is being done, and until operations are resumed in earnest no disturbances are anticipated.

Conferees Still Wide Apart.

WASHINGTON, July 12 —Members of the tariff conference committee both from the senate and house said last evening when the conference closed that progress was made Some designated the advance as good progress, and others contented themselves by saying simply, "progress." All, however, agreed that upon the subjects where the Wilson and senate bills radically differ the conferees are still very wide apart.

DENOUNCING THE MILITARY.

A Coroner's Jury Declares That They Shot Unnecessarily.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., July 12.—Yesterday in Spring Valley passed without interest, except the funeral of the Italian, Dominic Biam, who was killed by United States troops. The funeral was the largest ever witnessed in this city. Friends and sympathizers of the dead are swearing vengeance upon the heads of the United States soldiery. The coroner's jury found that the man "came to his death by a gunshot wound fired at the hands of Company E, Fifteenth regiment, under Captain Conrad, and that deceased was engaged in a peaceful and lawful occupation at the time; that the shooting was uncalled for, and an unwarranted use of military power against an inoffensive citizen. Further, that the treatment of the dead body Biam and of law abiding citizens after the shooting was brutal in the extreme. And the jury would recommend that the conduct of said troops while in Spring Valley on July 10 be investigated by the proper authorities."

More deputies arrived last night, but everything is very quiet. The city is guarded by militiamen, and no one can enter or leave the city without being subjected to a vigorous examination at the hands of the pickets.

A Brutal Anarchist Sentenced.

BARCELONA, July 12.—The trial began in this city yesterday of the anarchists Salvador Franch, Antonio Alfaro and Jose Prats. Franch was the author of the explosion in the Liceo theater on the night of Nov. 7 last, when upward of thirty persons were killed. Alfaro and Prats are charged as his accomplices. Franch, in a cynical tone, confessed that he threw the two bombs in the theater with the object of destroying the bourgeoisie present. He was glad he had killed so many people, but regretted that the second bomb had not exploded. After the evidence was all in Franch was declared guilty, and was immediately sentenced to death. He listened to his sentence without displaying the slightest trace of emotion. The trial of the other two, who plead innocence, is proceeding.

The city is now invested by Japanese pickets and detachments of troops have been extended along the great northern road from China. Ping Yang, the principal pass, is held in force. The Chinese troops remain sixty miles south of Chemulpo, where they originally landed.

The prime minister's speech was greeted with warm applause and the bill was passed by a vote of 158 to 16. The fixed domicile clause and the other new clauses of the bill will be rigidly enforced.

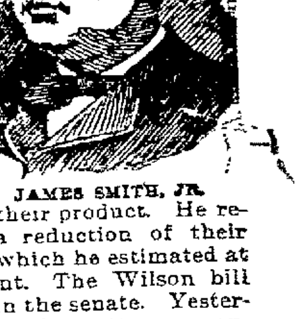
PEACEMAKER SMITH.

New Jersey's Senator Settles the Potters' Strike.

MEN TO RESUME WORK AT ONCE.

Mr. Smith, in Consideration of the Fact That Employers Do Not Insist on Sweeping Wage Reductions, Will Try to Fix the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Through the good offices of Senator Smith, of New Jersey, the strike of pottery workers, involving about 7,000 laborers in New Jersey, was settled, and as a collateral effect the difficulties in the same trade in Ohio, involving about 5000 men, probably will also be settled. These men went out about Jan 1 rather than accept a reduction of wages. When the Wilson bill came over to the senate the pottery manufacturers appealed to Senator Smith to use his influence to secure an increase of duty on their product. He refused in face of a reduction of their wages to employes, which he estimated at from 25 to 40 per cent. The Wilson bill rates were reduced in the senate. Yesterday representatives of the pottery manufacturers of New Jersey and one from Ohio and a large delegation of pottery workers met with Senator Smith, and the result of the discussion was an agreement by which the potters went back to work this morning at a reduction of 12½ per cent. from the scale paid before Jan. 1.



JAMES SMITH, JR.

The agreement does not touch what is called sanitary pottery Senator Smith does not admit that he offered to make an effort to secure an increase of duty on pottery as an inducement to the manufacturers to agree to the scale fixed, but the manufacturers undoubtedly hope for an increase from the tariff conference. The agreement is for one year, and stipulates that none of the strikers shall be blacklisted or refused employment for having joined the strike.

China Not Looking for Fight.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—While a conflict between China and Japan is possible it is not regarded here as likely. China is believed not to be spoiling for a fight, and it is asserted that she is not prepared for a conflict. The fact that the European and other governments, while not acquiescing in Japan's attitude in the instance, are not opposing it, leads to the belief that she will have their moral support in her endeavors to improve the conditions of the Coreans

THINK IT OVER.

Before you undertake a scheme,
  Just think it over.
It doesn't pay to sit and dream—
  But think it over.
It isn't wise to be too rash,
It never pays to be too brash,
Sometimes it costs in actual cash,
  So think it over.

If you are going to propose,
  Just think it over.
It's hard to hold back, goodness knows—
  But think it over.
You may have funds enough for two,
But seven or eight may come to you,
And if they should what would you do?
  So think it over.

In fact, whatever comes along,
  Just think it over.
That is the burden of this song—
  Just think it over.
Don't be afraid you'll miss the train
By sitting down to work your brain.
The chances are that you will gain—
  So think it over.

—Somerville Journal.

ANNETTE.

Mme. Xavier kept a shop at the end of the street, such a tiny shop, with only one window to it and a bit of a counter piled high with bunches of gay yarn and boxes of cheap tinsels. There was a bird in a cage in madame's window. He always sang furiously in the early morning, and a pot of mignonette in blossom adorned the sill.

Just across the road lived the sausage vender, a little old man, who wore a wig and dressed in snuff color.

He was early at his post every morning frying sausages, but being cruelly afflicted with asthma he could only speak in a loud, hoarse voice, so his daughter, Annette, a very dream of health and beauty, would stand beside him in her neat stuff gown and call in a voice as lusty as a chanticleer:

"Hot sausages! Hot sausages!"

Now, diagonally across on the next street was a tall brick building used as a storehouse. Its lower rooms were piled with dusty white bags full of grain, over which the satin coated mice frolicked and grew fat the livelong day, but up in the peak of the building was a large garret, rented to a poverty stricken artist.

Here were pictures strewn all about the room, while in the middle of the room stood a stout easel supporting a bare canvas. Every morning the artist crept down from his lofty quarters to buy hot sausages of M. Daubeau and to cast sly glances of intense regard at Annette, who, for her part, kept on at her calling as if there were no young men in the world.

But when he turned to go back to his garret then would Annette smile and toss her head, with its white cap, in a coquettish nod to the little madame across the road, saying as much, "See, I have an admirer!" And madame would smile back, for she dearly loved a romance. Sometimes she would beckon to Annette, and when the girl ran lightly across the street the old woman would say:

"When shall the wedding be?"

"Ugh!" Annette would answer. "Could I eat paint? I thrive now and am comfortable. Monsieur must make his fortune ere Annette weds him."

"And he shall do it," returned the little madame. "I will myself speak to monsieur."

That very day when the artist passed her shop with a canvas well wrapped in paper under his arm the little Frenchwoman called to him. "Come in," she said. "Show me the picture."

Reluctantly he undid it and disclosed a pensive faced Madonna.

"Fi done, monsieur!" exclaimed madame. "But she has a sickly look. I do not wonder you may not sell her. We have enough like her. Monsieur must paint different—something gay and cheerful—fresh, you know."

"I am too poor to hire a model," said the artist gloomily.

"Ah, truly," replied madame, "but suppose I could find a model. Would monsieur paint?"

"Perhaps."

She led the way through the tiny shop to a tinier living room. There, in one corner, looking very big and clumsy, stood an oaken chest, with the lilies of France carved upon it. The old woman unfastened a key from her chatelaine and knelt before the chest. She paused.

"Monsieur must know," she said gravely, "long way back in France my people were not poor, but rich. That was before the revolution, monsieur, before their names were knitted into the cruel madame's stocking. They fell. We have always been poor enough since. Ce coffre contains my great-grandmere's ball gown. Monsieur shall see."

She unlocked the chest, and lifting a covering of tissue paper shook out a rich white satin gown heavily embroidered with pale blue forgetmenots. The stomacher was thickly sewed with seed pearls, and wide ruffles of rare old lace edged the neck.

"Here are her slippers," continued madame, holding up a pair of white satin slippers adorned with tarnished gold buckles, "and these are the gloves she wore. To think I have them yet, monsieur, and my great-grandmere dust these 100 years! We might have sold her toilet over and over again when we were hungry and cold, but we always preferred to suffer for my grandmere's sake. Listen, monsieur. Petite Annette, across the street, you love her. I have seen so. She has a heart as sweet as a nut and as bonny a face as ever the sunshine kissed. If I put these robes upon her, she will look like une grande dame fit for monsieur's brush. She will be fresh like the rose and as beautiful. She shall be monsieur's model, and I will make his fortune."

That night, then, the sausage vender took in his stand. Annette, free at last, slipped across the road, and the old madame robed the girl in the grand toilet and fastened her soft, fluffy curls in a knot high on her head with a quaint tortoise shell comb. Wrapped in cloaks, the two stole down the street and entered the tall building. They threaded their way among the dusty bags, scaring the silvery coated mice, and climbed the stairs to the artist's studio.

When his eyes fell upon the vision of loveliness madame presented to him, they shone with a new light. Love? Well, part love and part artistic rapture, but in either case Annette was the cause. The little Frenchwoman clapped her hands and laughed joyfully.

Always during the sittings madame sat decorously by, knitting industriously, but keeping a sharp eye out, as became a chaperon. Not the slightest symptom of lovemaking escaped her. The portrait grew beneath the brush as if the very fairy of good luck had lent her spell to the artist. Never had his palette glowed with such colors, nor had such hitherto impossible tints blossomed forth. Every detail of the fresh young face became familiar to him until at last from the canvas looked forth the sausage vender's daughter in the grand dame's robes as beautiful as the proudest lady in the land.

"I can do no more," sighed the artist. Then madame arose, and taking the girl by the hand led her toward the door. "Monsieur has no longer need of us," she exclaimed. "Adieu!"

But the artist would not have it so. He pushed past the old Frenchwoman and stood before the girl.

"I love you, Annette," he cried. "Will you not marry me?"

"Tut, tut," said madame. "You must first speak to M. Laubeau. We will have no bold American manners here. If he consents, then Annette may think of you. Come, Annette."

It was indeed true that the little madame had brought good luck to the poor artist. The portrait was sent to a picture dealer. In less than a week it was sold, and orders had come through the dealer enough to set the artist busy. He went to thank the old Frenchwoman.

"The good people like something fresh," said the madame. "Monsieur might have sat in his garret and pined and been melancholy till he died. Good luck would have none of him. One must be brave and smile to win fortune."

"I owe everything to you," said the grateful young man.

"Ah, true!" returned madame nonchantly, "but tell me, have you yet won M. Laubeau's consent?"

"Alas, he refuses me Annette's hand! He will give me no reason."

"We must learn," said the madame, and leaning far out of the window of her tiny shop she beckoned frantically to the sausage vender across the road. He came, followed by Annette.

"Why is it M. Laubeau refused his daughter to the young monsieur who loves her truly?" inquired the Frenchwoman.

"I could not get on without Annette," grumbled the old man. "There would be none to cry hot sausages!"

"True, true," said madame, "but must the young people be unhappy for this?"

"I am old," continued the sausage vender, "and I have but Annette. If I yield her to the young monsieur, who will care for me?"

"Let me think," said the little Frenchwoman. "Ah, I have it! 'Tis said only the young should wed, but I say 'tis well to be comfortable in one's old age, and a companion is needful. If M. Laubeau wishes it, I will reconsider the proposal he made me years ago. He shall fetch the sausage stand across the road and set it here—in front of my shop. The priest shall make us one, and I myself will cry hot sausages!"—Mary E. Stone Bassett in Kate Field's Washington.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still. I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell himwhat to do. I wanted to tell him whatI needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess,

I looked around for some authority ~~which I might~~ consult in ~~order~~ to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy ank secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow know that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

Dainties For the Sick.

In providing dainties for sick people it should be remembered that sweet things are seldom as tempting to the sick as they would be if in health. Tart sweets, such as crabapple jelly or currant jelly, are generally acceptable, but strawberry preserves or jelly will sicken. They belong to the cloying sweets. As a general thing, salty things taste best to the convalescent. A weak bouillon, rather salt, or a bit of nice, sweet ham, with some butter toast tasting of the salty butter, a soft boiled egg well salted, a slice of nice bacon, with dry toast—all these will be eaten by a sick person who would not want to touch them if well. One prime requisite in catering to sick people is to be neat about it and serve things daintily. The tray should be spread with an immaculate white cloth, and the cup, saucer, plate and other dishes should be of a smaller size than is used when one is in health. The things served should be perfectly fresh and served in small quantity. It fairly turns a sick person's stomach to have a great pile of stuff set before him, and all desire to eat flees where there is a meal that would serve for the dinner of a harvest hand plumped down in front of him, with the injunction to "eat it all and get some flesh on his bones." Try to make the viands attractive by garnishing with fresh green things, if possible. If catering to little children, try to get a prettily decorated china set for the meals. I have known children to eat simply that they might see the "picture" in the bottom of the plate, and they actually began to mend from that day.—Washington Star.

The Disposal of Property.

Lady Cook has a decided opinion upon the subject of the disposal of property by a father among his children. "I think," she says, "that the father should take his children's suitability into consideration, but distribute the property equally if they are all equally clever. If not, the bulk should go to the most intelligent and trustworthy, be it son or daughter, the rest to be equitably provided for out of the residuum. The weakest want the most help in the struggle for life, and money can always be so guarded by law that it cannot be made away with by the reckless or those incapable of taking care of it.—Philadelphia Times.

At Big Indian, William Lasher, a brakeman on the train, while leaning over the platform of a car, was struck by a bridge and fatally injured. There was great excitement on the train, thirty or more women fainting and several going into hysterics.

MME. CARNOT.

Mme. Carnot, the charming woman who was recently made a widow by the hand of an Italian assassin, was a fitting companion for the loyal, shrewd, high minded president of France. She was Mlle. Dupont-White before her marriage to the then unknown Marie Francois Sadi Carnot in 1864. Her official rule as first lady of France has been an unqualified success, and her numerous social graces, charming personality and unquestioned intellectuality have made her the idol of the French people.

She has won her great success, too, in spite of the fact that she is very deaf. Her infirmity has been constantly growing during the past few years, but as her hearing decreased her power of vision increased, and she has been wonderfully successful in divining what a person was saying to her by the movement of the lips. It is said that when Mme. Carnot began her reign she found social chaos at the capital. Democracy was enthroned, and very vulgar democracy at that. The dinners at the executive mansion were more remarkable for the amount of wine consumed than for the wit displayed. Mme. Carnot changed all this, and during the Carnot administration a state dinner was a feast of reason and a flow of soul, with, of course, a slight dash of wine in it.

MME. CARNOT.

Mme. Carnot is of medium height, with an olive complexion and Roman features. She devotes her mornings to her family and personally looks after the education of her children. She speaks English and Italian and has a fair knowledge of other useful languages. One thing that has made Mme. Carnot the great social success that she has been during her late husband's term of office is the fact that she is without doubt the best dressed woman in all France. Youth seems bound to her by the ties of health and amiability, and her numerous admirers say she will look five and twenty to the day of her death despite the presence of a married daughter in the house. She takes great interest in the welfare of women, and, despite her impaired hearing she has always turned anything but a deaf ear to the plaints of the poor and unfortunate. Her married life with M. Carnot was very happy, and his tragic end has been a terrible blow.

ONE ARMED, BUT ACTIVE.

Captain Urban Andrian Woodbury, who was recently nominated for governor of Vermont by the Republicans, is a veteran with a good war record. He was born in Acworth, N. H., 56 years ago, but has been a resident of Vermont ever since he was 2 years old. He received a regulation American common school education in Morristown and later was graduated from the medical department of the University of Vermont.

At the outbreak of the civil war young Woodbury entered the service as sergeant in Company H, Second regiment Vermont volunteers. Two months after his enlistment he lost an arm in the thick of the fight at Bull Run's bloody rout, was taken prisoner, was paroled in October of the same year and was discharged from the service on account of disability two weeks later. War had already cost him his entire right arm, but he was still full of fight, and less than a year later he was again in the field as captain of Company D, Eleventh regiment, Vermont volunteers.

URBAN ANDRIAN WOODBURY.

He retained his command until March, 1865, when he resigned. He promptly turned his sword into a cant hook, metaphorically speaking, by entering the lumber business in Burlington, in which he is still engaged.

Captain Woodbury's political career began in 1881, when he was elected alderman in Burlington. The following year he was chosen president of the board of aldermen, and in 1885 he stepped into the mayor's chair. Three years thereafter he was elected lieutenant governor of the state. He is a member of the G. A. R., the Loyal Legion, the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and Sons of the American Revolution and has taken the thirty-second degree in the Masonic fraternity.

THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1894.

The Vigilant goes from bad to worse. The Britannia beat her, yesterday, by 31 m. 19 s., actual time.

The Republican General Committee of Erie county, yesterday, adopted resolutions formally endorsing Controller James A. Roberts as a candidate for Governor.

The Government crop estimate, published yesterday, gives the condition of corn and winter wheat as better than at the corresponding date last year. The condition of spring wheat is put at 68 4 as against 88 on June 1st and 74.1 on July 1st 1893. The oats crop is also in a bad way, having gone off nine points during the past month.

The Constitutional Commission to revise New Jersey's judicial system was petitioned by the equal suffrage women of the State to revise the section of the constitution, which defines the qualifications of voters, by striking out the word "male." A member of the commission suggested that in view of the President's proclamation that there should be "no interference with the mails" the petition should be tabled, but it was finally spread on the minutes and the commission continued its work of devising a better judicial system than the one now in force.

Under an Illinois statute the city of Chicago will have to reimburse the railroads for the value of the cars and other property destroyed by rioters during the strike. The loss by incendiary fires alone is put at $2,000,000, and when the grand total is made up it will be found that the city will have to pay heavily for the acts of a few madmen. Allegany county, Pa., is still sweating under the burden of indebtedness which it had to assume to meet the judgments entered against it for the $5,000,000 worth of property destroyed in Pittsburg during the railroad riots of 1877, and Chicago property owners, when their tax bills come in, will be sharply reminded for years to come of the Pullman boycott strike of 1894.

The Constitutional Convention's Committee on Suffrage took, yesterday, what is regarded as a test vote on the woman suffrage question. When the committee met an anti-suffragists tried to make short work of the whole matter by moving to report unfavorably all the woman suffrage amendments. The friends of equal suffrage objected and moved that no vote be taken but that a subcommittee be appointed to draft an amendment giving women the right to vote. After long discussion this motion prevailed by a vote of nine to eight. Mr. Wiggins voted with the minority. A member of the Suffrage Committee says that seven members of the committee are in favor of giving women the ballot and is confident that a suffrage amendment of some kind will be reported to the convention.

The indicted officers of the American Railway Unio n propose to make a determined effort to have the members of the General Managers' Association indicted by the United States Grand Jury. The Railway Union's officers are advised that if the officers of the Union were conspirators when they ordered the boycott and the strike the members of the Managers, Association as clearly conspired when they resolved that no trains should be moved on any of the roads until all the roads had gained the points in dispute. The assertion is further made that the obstruction of the United States mails and the interruption of interstate commerce, is due more to the acts of the managers than to those of the officers of the union.

During the night several shots were fired at the militia, but no one was hurt. The depot here is picketed by troops.

And he was wondrous wise,
He jumped into a shoddy store

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary Downs

Dr. W. E Douglas received, to-day, a dispatch from Denver announcing the death in that city, this morning, of his cousin, Mrs. Mary Downs, a former resident of Downsville, N. Y. and later of this city.

Mrs. Downs was the daughter of Sherman M. and Serena Hine. She was born in Otego, Otsego county, July 12, 1840, and was therefore exactly fifty-four years of age. Her husband, John A. Downs, died some years ago.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Hine, of Franklin; two sisters, Mrs. Henry Saunders, of Oneonta, and Mrs. Alice Edwards, of Franklin, N. Y.; a brother, Charles, residing in Texas; also by three sons, Rev. George W. Downs, assistant pastor of the Central Methodist Church, of New York city; Augustus A., business manager of the Rocky Mountain Voice, and William A. Downs, with Fisher & Daniels, dry goods merchants of Denver, Col.

The cause of death was not stated in the dispatch but it is supposed to be heart disease from which Mrs. Downs had been a sufferer for some time.

The remains will be brought East for burial.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

An Old Resident of Mount Hope Drops Dead.

Mr. Aaron Cortright, one of the oldest and best known residents of the town of Mount Hope, dropped dead at 11 o'clock last night. He had suffered from heart disease which is believed to have been the cause of his death. He was seventy-five years old and had lived all his life in the town. He was a blacksmith by occupation and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Ladies Who Bloat.

What a great number there are, how uncomfortable it makes them; it is almost impossible for these afflicted to enjoy life. In my private practice I have always found Sulphur Bitters to be the best remedy. All who are thus troubled should use it. MRS. DR. CHILDS, Boston.

HOME FROM A LONG JOURNEY.

Dr. Connor and Party Back from the Pacific Coast—Not Inconvenienced by the Strike.

Dr. and Mrs. Connor and Miss Mary Irwin returned on Erie train 8, last evening, from a six weeks' trip to the Pacific coast and through the West. The doctor states that he was not inconvenienced by the strike. At Livingston, Montana, there was a slight delay on the Northern Pacific, but the party took a four days' ride by stage to the Union Pacific road, and it proved a most pleasant feature of the trip.

There was no delay at Chicago, and the only indication of a strike or any excitement out of the ordinary run of business activity was the presence of soldiers about the depots and railroad yard and at public buildings in and about the city. There was no excitement, whatever, at Buffalo.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies." Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

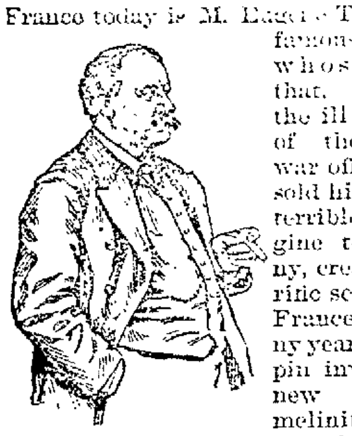
TURPIN AND HIS GUN.

The Famous Inventor Who Has Put All France in a Ferment.

One of the most interesting figures in France today is M. Eugene Turpin, the famous inventor whose claim that, owing to the ill treatment of the French war office, he had sold his new and terrible war engine to Germany, created a terrific sensation in France. Not many years ago Turpin invented the new explosive, melinite, and the French war office treated him so abominably that he published a pamphlet which contained severe reflections upon government officials, and Turpin was imprisoned. The government, however, allowed Turpin to continue work upon his schemes, and the result of his prison labor was a mysterious engine of war that the inventor claimed would wipe out an entire army in 15 minutes and destroy such a city as Paris in an hour. Turpin was released and offered to give the machine to France if the government would remove from his character the stain inflicted by imprisonment and restore his cross of the Legion of Honor. The officials were hard hearted and refused. In a moment of anger Turpin went to Belgium and began negotiating for the sale of his invention to France's enemy, Germany. When this rumor was published, France went wild, and there arose such a howl of execration at the war office that the government hurriedly asked Turpin to return to France. He is now there, and France is to enjoy the murderous benefits of his engine of destruction. There is still a haze of mystery surrounding the invention, but it is a monster cannon that works like machine guns of the maxim and gatling principle. The cannon is provided with an automatic loading apparatus and may be fired about once in three minutes. At each fire it discharges 25,000 shells, which will explode with terrific effect upon the enemy. By methodically turning the gun its line of fire forms an arc covering 12 kilometers and wiping out every living thing in its path. The gun, according to Turpin, is a veritable glutton for ammunition and must always be accompanied by enough shells to load a railroad train of many cars. Whether the gun will do in practice what Turpin claims for it in theory remains to be seen.



M. EUGENE TURPIN.

"ODD AS DICK'S HATBAND."

"Cyclone" Davis Is Thus Distinguished From the Other Davises of Texas.

One of the unique political characters of the Lone Star State is James Harvey Davis, better known in the world of politics as "Cyclone" Davis. He is tall, blue eyed and "odd as Dick's hatband," as one of his friends puts it. The first daylight to greet his baby eyes was that of South Carolina, and the time when this interesting event occurred was 50 years ago. When James was 13 years old, his father removed to Winsboro, Tex., where the motherless boy after three years of instruction and at the age of 19 began a five years' term of schoolteaching.

JAMES HARVEY DAVIS.

In 1882 he was admitted to the bar. He had always been an active Democrat, but in 1890 his political faith changed, and he became a member of the Cincinnati conference that formed the National People's Party. He has been a member of the national committee of the organization ever since and has stumped many states of the Union for the cause of the Populists. His sobriquet was the inspiration of Frankfort (Ky.) newspaper men, who were much impressed with the eloquence he displayed during a warm debate with Attorney General Hardon. The papers regretted that he was "on the wrong side of politics," as they expressed it, but they freely admitted that "his rounds of eloquence, pithy anecdotes and rousing rejoinders never failed to bring forth a cyclone of applause." Thenceforth the tall and eloquent Texan was known throughout the west as "Cyclone" Davis.

Another sobriquet, "Methodist Jim," is also the result of Davis' oratorical efforts. He says he is not a church member for the reason that he is not good enough, but during a discussion with a prominent Republican in Houston Davis' talent as an exhorter led him to be called "Methodist Jim."

In 187[illegible] Cupid and some very eloquent exhorting, with the result that the Lone Star orator wooed Miss Belle Barton, the daughter of a well known Texan. Since the occurrence of that event four young [illegible] cyclones have struck the Davis home. The eldest and most cyclonic youngster is 13 years of age, and the youngest is a [illegible] year-old [illegible]. For the past three years the Davis home has been in Sulphur Springs, where Mr. Davis edits The Vindicator, a reform paper.

A Question of Medical Ethics.

A question of medical ethics is raised in The Women's Medical Journal of Cleveland by Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee. It is a well established principle in the American Medical association that "all practioners of medicine, their wives and their children, while under the paternal care, are entitled to the gratuitous services of any one or more of the faculty residing near them whose assistance may be desired." The question is whether women physicians benefit by the rule or whether it is ignored when the relative of a woman physician requires treatment by a medical man. Instances have come to Dr. McGee's knowledge in Washington where bills were sent to women physicians and paid, and she is of the opinion that "if this is a common experience it may be considered wise to maintain the principle of sexual equality in the profession by asking medical associations for an interpretation of this rule."

Chemical Perfumes.

Chemistry seems to furnish substitutes for the expensive perfumes now made from flowers. It has long been known that the exact odor of the banana is produced in the laboratory. There seems a possibility, however, that even when some fragrant plants cease to be cultivated for the perfumes many may become of importance in surgery. It has been discovered that some such plants are free from the attacks of insects and from fungous growths, and this may be due to the fact that their essential oils have antiseptic properties. The eucalyptus yields an antiseptic, and so do other familiar plants. — Chicago Herald

SHYLOCK PROPITIATED.

Once during the days of his early struggles Edwin Booth was "barnstorming" down in Virginia at a place called Lee's Landing. The improvised theater was a tobacco warehouse, and it was crowded by the planters for miles round. Booth and [illegible] had arranged to take the [illegible] expected late that night and [illegible] were busy packing up. The [illegible] "Merchant of Venice," and [illegible] going on for the trial scene when [illegible] three whistles, and the manager came running in to say that the steamer had arrived and would leave again in half an hour. As that was the only chance for a week of getting away, they were in a terrible quandary.

"If we explain matters," said the manager, "the audience will think they are being cheated, and we shall have a free fight. The only thing is for you fellows to get up some sort of natural like impromptu ending of the piece and ring down the curtain. Go right ahead, ladies and gentlemen, and take your cue from Ned there," and he hurried away to get the luggage aboard.

Ned, of course, was Booth, who resolved to rely upon the ignorance of the Virginians of those days to pull him through. So when old George Ruggles—who was playing Shylock—began to sharpen his knife on his boot, Booth walked straight up to him and said solemnly, "You are bound to have the flesh, are you?"

"You bet your life," said Ruggles,

"Now, I'll make you one more offer," continued Booth. "In addition to this bag of ducats I'll throw in two kegs of niggerhead terback, a shotgun and a couple of the best coon dogs in the state."

"I'm blowed if I don't do it," responded Shylock, much to the approbation of the audience, who were tobacco raisers and coon hunters to a man. "And to show that there are no ill feelings," put in Portia, "we'll wind up with a Virginia reel."

When the company got aboard the steamer, the captain, who had witnessed the conclusion of the play, remarked:

"I'd like to see the whole of that play some time, gentlemen. I'm blessed if I thought that fellow Shakespeare had so much snap in him."—Life's Calendar.

SHOTS HERE AND THERE

Resuscitation of the Apparently Drowned—The Beetle Infested Elms—A Suicide's Curt Farewell Message to the World—Orangemen's Day.

At this season of the year, when boys "go in swimmin'" half a dozen times a day, if they get the chance, and when those who cannot swim are likely to venture beyond their depths, and when cramps may possibly render powerless even strong swimmers, it is well to remember that a large proportion of those who are seemingly dead when taken from the water, are really in a state of suspended animation. A writer in the New York Sun relates the case of a boy who had been under the water of Long Island Sound for fifteen or twenty minutes, and who was given up for dead by the majority of the spectators. The lad was brought back to life after two hours of continued friction, the application of hot towels, and the modern system of compressing and expanding the lungs by raising and lowering the arms of the patient. Instances of this kind are too numerous and too well attested to admit of question, and they point the moral of persistent effort, for hours if need be, at fanning back into flame the half-quenched and imperceptible spark of life.

The elm beetles have ruined the foliage on many of the elm trees about town and the leaves, brown and seared as if by fire or frost, are already falling. The elm, once one of the most beautiful and most deservedly popular trees for city growth, because of the ravages of the elm beetle, is no longer satisfactory and in many places the authorities are ordering the removal of trees that once were the pride and delight of dwellers on the streets o'er which their graceful branches arched. Middletown never boasted elm-lined streets or avenues and though some people, when they remembered the beauty of such streets in other places, were disposed to lament the fact, no one now regrets that elms are far and few between in Middletown's streets.

⁂

I am very favorably impressed with the simple curtness of the note left by "Robert Frank, from New York," who committed suicide in Greenwood Cemetery, yesterday. It was, "I have taken my life with a revolver. Cause of suicide, nobody's business." Evidently the world had used the poor fellow badly and in taking leave of it he gave it a kick, feeble perhaps, but none the less a kick, by assuring it that it was "nobody's business," why he put a bullet in his head. As compared with the long, rambling, ranting letters often left by suicides to explain their acts, Frank's "nobody's business" note is deserving of the highest commendation.

⁂

To-day is Orangemen's day, the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, a day which revives unpleasant memories between Irishmen of Protestant and Catholic faiths, and which has been the occasion of countless feuds between them. There seems to be less of bitterness between the wearers of the orange and of the green than there were or perhaps a more exact statement would be that there are fewer exhibitions of it than there used to be when Orange parades were permitted and the memory of the triumph of the Protestants under the Prince of Orange over the Catholic under King James was obtruded on Irishmen of the latter faith. Even now, however, the battle of the Boyne is not a safe topic of discussion between North and South of Ireland men for the discussion is quite apt to become so heated that resort is had to knock down arguments.

A MYSTERIOUS HILL.

Near Lake Mohonk and Cannot Be Coasted on a Bicycle.

E. P. Howarth writes as follows to the Poughkeepsie Eagle regarding a mysterious hill that cannot be coasted with a bicycle:

Traveling towards Lake Mohonk a 'cyclist begins to descend the last of the many hills that intervene between the river and foot of the mountain. If he has one of the older style wheels, with rests for his feet, he gives his machine a little start, throws his pedal extremities blissfully upon the coasters, and proceeds, all unsuspectingly, to enjoy the ride to the bottom of the long incline. Immediately he ceases propelling his mount, it slows up more and more, comes to a standstill, and actually falls over unless given a fresh impulse. If it be the first time the wheelman has passed over this piece of ground he is at a loss regarding the cause for the trouble, for upon reaching the foot of the declivity he rests his wheel upon the little bridge and gives every part a thorough oiling. If it chances to be the second time, however, his suspicions are aroused that his steed should require the assistance of a lubricating agent twice at this very same spot, and guesses the real difficulty, namely, that his wheel will not, no matter how perfect its condition, roll down the slope unassisted.

The writer has made five bicycle trips to Lake Mohonk, and obtained during the last four no little amusement out of this particular piece of road. Once he was in a party of five and the other four riders all started to oil their bearings immediately at the foot of this incline, just as it had been predicted they would before the start was made from home. On another occasion a tourist was along with a brand new mount, of which he was justly proud. He declared that it did not require oiling, and demanded to be shown any hill in reasonable condition that his wheel would not coast like a bird. His companions declined to point out the mysterious declivity in advance, assuring him that when reached, it would speak for itself. Sure enough, when he began to glide confidently down the grade, the pride of his heart began to act as though he had the brake set, and finally wobbled over to the edge of the highway and deposited its chagrined master in the ditch. He took a fresh start with a similar result. Then he gave in and admitted it to be the queerest thing he had ever known in his life.

The hill is about a third of a mile long, and has some clayey soil, but is usually in a very good condition. No difficulty is experienced in ascending the slope; in fact it seems to be cleared with less than the usual effort. The reason why the spot is now more famous doubtless is, as already intimated, because a rider who passes over it but once accepts the fact that his wheel will not travel unassisted down into the valley as proof positive that a little oil is all that is required. He is the more ready to believe this since he encounters no other difficulty of a like nature anywhere else along the route. His wheel merely needs a little attention; it receives it, and now it rolls along all right. This to the average mind is simple and conclusive.

Amongst the many speculations indulged in regarding the uncanny refusal of a bicycle to here obey the law of gravity, the most feasible would appear to be the existence of a considerable mass of magnetic ore located mostly, in all probability, near the summit of the incline.

MIDSUMMER SNAKE STORIES.

A Careful Compilation of the Doings of Snake Slayers in This Part of the World.

George Brown, of Norwich, N. Y., while walking across a bridge at that place, Tuesday morning, saw an immense blacksnake sunning itself in the centre of the structure. He killed the reptile with a club. The snake measured ten feet, eight inches in length and nearly six inches in circumference.

Mrs. E. J. Adams, of Preston, Wayne county, Pa., recently heard papers rustling in a room of her residence. She went in to ascertain the cause, and was horrified to see an adder three feet long in the centre of the room. Mrs. Adams went out and hastily closed the door. On the return of her husband, he, armed with a stick, cautiously opened the room door. The adder showed fight and attacked Mr. Adams, who finally gave it a blow on the back which killed the reptile.

Frank Satterlein, of Stockport, has captured alive a yellow rattlesnake three and a half feet long, which had eleven rattles. George Riley, of Somerset Lake; Editor Pendell, of Callicoon, and William Wardell, of Oneonta, have just distinguished themselves by killing big rattlesnakes.

DE WITT CAMP'S PICNIC.

The camp fire and picnic of Gen. DeWitt Camp at Mannerchor Park, yesterday afternoon and evening, was well attended, but the crowd was not nearly so large as it would have been if the electric road was in operation in that section of the city.

The members of the camp and their friends had a good time, the principal amusement being dancing to the music of Berg and Halstead's orchestra.

Drowned in the Hudson.

Charles Stanton, a three-year-old Newburgh boy, was drowned in the Hudson, last night. The boy's father started to give him a sail on the river, and while he was bailing out the boat the boy, who had been left on shore, fell into the water and was drowned. The father was so interested in bailing the boat that he knew nothing of his son's fate till he looked up after emptying the boat. The body was recovered two hours after the accident.

THE PRESIDENT COMING TO MIDDLETOWN.

The Sick May Receive Medical Services Free of Charge.

The President and members of the European and American Staff of German, English, Irish, Scandinavian and American Doctors of New York city will be at the Russell House, Middletown, on one day only. The sick and afflicted may consult them without charge during their stay.

If you are incurable they will tell you; therefore invalids must not take offence if they are rejected, as no case will be accepted unless there is a moral certainty of a cure being effected. These Doctors are graduates of the best universities of Europe and America; they are of the highest standing in the medical profession and have had unlimited experience in the treatment of all Chronic Diseases and Deformities. As the latest methods, instruments and appliances of the various schools of both the Old and the New World are familiar to and at the command of this staff of doctors, it is reasonable to believe that in ninety cases out of every hundred a cure can be effected, even when the patients have been given up as incurable by doctors who have had less experience. Do not be discouraged because your doctor cannot give you relief, or even if he tells you that you cannot get well, for it matters not what your disease may be, you can consult the doctors free, and, if curable, they will treat you; if incurable, they will give you such advice as will tend to prolong life and afford you the greatest relief.

The doctor will visit Middletown one day each month. Office hours from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.
